

COST OF ATTENDANCE & FINANCIAL AID 2009-2010
U.S. CITIZENS AND PERMANENT RESIDENTS

Cost of attendance (COA) is comprised of two types of costs - direct and indirect. Direct costs are reflected on bills payable to Columbia University – for example, tuition, fees, and housing if you live in University Apartment Housing. Indirect costs are not billed by Columbia University and include books, travel, and other personal expenses. Indirect costs may vary greatly, whereas direct costs are fixed. SIPA must set COA figures for each year. The figures below are based on full time attendance.

IMPORTANT - Financial aid can be awarded up to the cost of attendance, but may not exceed the cost of attendance.

- PREPARING YOUR FINANCES FOR THE UPCOMING YEAR -

1. Read your award letter to find out what aid you have been awarded. A glossary of financial aid funds can be found on the next page.
2. Determine how much you need to pay from your own resources and start to budget.
3. Decide what aid you wish to accept. If you do not want to accept all or part of the financial aid that you have been awarded, please email our office at sipa_finaid@columbia.edu.
4. If you have chosen to accept loans, we recommend beginning the process as soon as possible. You will need to select a lender to process your student loan(s). Students have the right and ability to select the education loan provider of their choice, are not required to use any of these suggested lenders and will suffer no penalty for choosing a lender that is not included as a suggested lender. These steps should be completed a minimum of six weeks in advance in order to ensure the timely delivery of any loan funds that you would like to borrow.
5. Be prepared to cover the first three weeks of each semester on your own. Financial aid is disbursed one semester at a time and all financial aid funds are sent directly to Columbia University. Disbursement checks are issued approximately three weeks after classes begin, following the Add/Drop period. If you receive more financial aid than is necessary to pay your direct costs, the university will issue a check for the excess amount from which you will be able to reimburse yourself once the funds are received. This is to ensure that the student is actually enrolled and entitled to the funds. Also, please keep in mind that SIPA does not offer summer courses program and as a result, we are not able to offer any funding for summer courses.

*If you have additional questions about your financial aid process at any time, please send a message to sipa_finaid@columbia.edu.

- INSTITUTIONALLY BASED AID -

SIPA's Philosophy - If you applied for a fellowship, you will be or were notified of these awards within your admission letter. If nothing is mentioned within the admissions letter it means that no fellowship, scholarship, grant or assistantship was granted. Also keep in mind that many SIPA students have been successful at securing external fellowship support toward their costs of attending graduate school. Many of these scholarships are described in the SIPA Database of External Grants and Fellowships. If you are awarded an external fellowship, it is your responsibility to notify the SIPA financial aid office in writing.

- EVERYTHING ELSE -

Other Sources of Funding - Although SIPA does offer institutional based funding, the cost of attendance is significant so students should plan carefully. Very few SIPA awards cover full tuition so students are encouraged to seek other sources of funding. Many SIPA students are successful at securing external fellowship support. Some of these scholarships are described in the SIPA Database of External Grants and Fellowships. If you are awarded an external fellowship please know that it is your responsibility to notify the SIPA financial aid office in writing. The SIPA Database of External Grants and Fellowships is accessible via this link: <http://sipa.columbia.edu/fellowships>

Other avenues of financial assistance for both domestic and international students can be found by doing some financial aid "homework." Admitted students may want to research scholarship and fellowship opportunities distributed by former schools attended or former employers. Networking is always a good way to conduct research for funding.

It is advisable not to limit your search to the school or type of program that you are pursuing. You should conduct a broad search related to factors such as your background, interest, gender, hobbies, etc. In addition, organizations to which you belong sometimes give funding to members seeking educational funding assistance. Persistence pays so be consistent in your search. It is advisable that you set aside a specific time either weekly or biweekly to search for funding opportunities.

Third Party Billing - If someone else will be paying any portion of your bill directly to Columbia University, you need to notify us and to complete a Third Party Billing Agreement. Please explore the following link for more information: <http://www.columbia.edu/cu/sfs/docs/billing/Sponsored-Students/index.html>
